Preface xi

Acknowledgments xv

Introduction 1

contents

1 · MAKING THE WORLD IN A BASKET 13

Work, Labor, and Community in Ancient Time California

2 · THEY, WHITE PEOPLE, MADE SLAVES OF INDIANS 30

Forced Labor in the Nome Cult Valley, 1850–1865

3 · THEY WERE KEPT BUSY AT ALL TIMES 58

Mobility, Cash Wages, and the Reconstruction of Labor Relations in Round Valley, 1865–1880

4 · IT GIVE EVERYBODY A JOB 80

Round Valley Indians and Mendocino County's Hop Industry, 1875–1929

5 · FROM FARM WORKERS TO . . . FARM WORKERS 106
Land, Labor, and the Allotment of the Round Valley Reservation, 1880–1900

6 · THEY GAVE ALL THEY WERE GOING TO GIVE TO THE INDIANS 130
Round Valley Indian Work, Labor, and Community, 1900–1917

7 · WHO GOOD TO FEED THEM CHILDREN? 156
Family Labor and Community in War and Peace, 1917–1929

8 · BUILDING BRIDGES AND TELLING STORIES 176
Labor, Economy, and Community during the Great Depression

Conclusion 204
Notes 217
Bibliography 251
Index 273

maps and illustrations

MAPS

Tribal Territories and Location of the Round Valley Reservation 4
Round Valley Reservation, ca. 1880 108

ILLUSTRATIONS

Indian workers on the Nome Cult Farm in the 1850s 42
The last remnants of the wood fence built by Round Valley Indian workers in the mid-nineteenth century 48
Nomlacki Jim McGetric, who turned to sheepshearing in order to earn cash wages 67
Pomo woman holds a child in a hop camp near Ukiah 85
Pomo boy separates hop flowers from stems in a hop field near Ukiah 86

Round Valley Indian men and their teams working on a ditch and road project in 1907 134
Yuki Ralph Moore was an active member of Round Valley's labor community 167
Wailacki June Russ Britton hoeing her garden in the 4-H program established during the Great Depression 181
Two girls standing in front of Yuki/Wailacki
Filmore Duncan's house in the 1930s 182
Indians working on the Nashmead Bridge 193