

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments xi

INTRODUCTION Disease Histories and Race Histories 1

- 1 Toward a Historical Epidemiology of African American Tuberculosis 19
- 2 The Rise of the City and the Decline of the Negro: The Historical Idea of Black Tuberculosis and the Politics of Color and Class 41
- 3 Urban Underdevelopment, Politics, and the Landscape of Health 67
- 4 Establishing Boundaries: Politics, Science, and Stigma in the Early Antituberculosis Movement 87
- 5 Locating African Americans and Finding the “Lung Block” 107
- 6 The Web of Surveillance and the Emerging Politics of Public Health in Baltimore 139
- 7 The Road to Henryton and the Ends of Progressivism 169

CONCLUSION Unequal Burdens: Public Health at the Intersection of Segregation and Housing Politics 201

Notes 223

Index 299